the "protective" blanket assertion of executive privilege over the entirety of the subpoenaed vital legislative, oversight and constitutional duties. Accordingly, the last-minute claims of interest in the fair administration of justice outweighs the President's generalized interest in Attorney General William P. Barr is in contempt of report has been waived when the President previously confidentiality; (10) and without these documents, the Committee cannot fully perform its documents as they are likely to contain evidence critical to the Committee's inquiry; (ii) the documents sought cannot expeditiously be obtained any other way; and (iii) any executive documents, or the privilege log and other information called for by the subpoena; (8) even if respect to redacted portions of the Report because the Attorney General himself has indicated the assertion of the privilege were valid as an initial matter, which it is not, the assertion has President engaged in obstruction of justice and other misconduct, and therefore the public a willingness to allow an arbitrarily limited number of Members to view those materials; (7) the Department of Justice has failed to provide any details by which the Committee might Attorney General; (9) there is substantial evidence indicating that the are subject to other constitutionally recognized privileges; (6) the assertion is suspect with been overcome here, as: (i) the Committee has demonstrated a sufficient need for the made the decision not to assert executive privilege over any portion of the report, as such as the senders and recipients of the Congress today for failing to turn over lawfully subpoenaed documents. evaluate the applicability of the privilege, materials does not change the fact that privilege that could be asserted to the announced by the